Rennes 2 University

Department of Sociology

Description succinte

The Department of Sociology aims to provide students with the knowledge necessary to better observe and understand social reality through the implementation of theoretical and methodological tools specific to the discipline. Based on a critical and reflexive tradition, coursework in our programs are based on the reading of principal authors in the discipline, the discovery of different currents of thought and the study of empirical work for the acquisition of a sociological posture.

We offer a Bachelor's program and two Master's programs. The Department is also attached to the Faculty of Social Sciences for the conduct of research in two units related to the field of sociology, the LiRIS Research Unit: Interdisciplinary Research Laboratory in Societal Innovations and the ESO Research Unit Rennes: Spaces and Societies.
