Rennes 2 University

Department of German

Description succinte

Our Department aims to give students an advanced understanding of the Germanic world, literature, culture and civilization of the countries linked to the German language, as well as a good command of the German language, written and spoken.

Courses in literature, civilization and of history of ideas will allow you to acquire a thorough knowledge of culture and arts of Germanic speaking countries and to understand their evolution, while practical reading exercises, analysis of written, audiovisual and iconographic works will help to establish links between the different subject matters presented throughout the classes.
